Into the unknown

We feel as missionaries in this current in history that we are constantly moving from unknown to unknown. Preparing for what we hope will happen but never really knowing what's coming next. Never really having an answer for "so when do y'all think you will head back?" I always reply "May 3rd", because that was our original plan. Everything has changed so much it's almost funny whenever someone in the family asks "so what's the plan?". The truth is this year so far has taught us more than ever that God is in control. It has helped us to learn to live a surrendered life more than ever before. It has been used in our lives to purify our motives and genuinely seek the Lord.

We know as missionaries that we are not the only ones to have endured this trial of 2020, but it has brought some unique complications for us that we would ask that you pray for with us. Many missionaries stuck in the States are basically homeless, many have Church families that are hurting that they can't help, they are trying to balance their finances to pay for bills in 2 countries now instead of 1, they are trying to return home but aren't giving any definitive answers. If you could would you pray for your missionaries today.
