Time has really flown by since our last prayer letter. When summer gets here, we get really busy. It's non-stop action till winter which never seems to be very far away. Although we have not had any major events this summer, we have been busy knocking on doors and presenting the gospel to numerous people. We have had several visitors, and some seem to be hanging in there as far as attending the church. Our attendance is still low compared to what we once were, but it is picking up slowly but surely. There are two new families we are praying for that we are working on getting into church. It is actually the wife of a young couple that is having marriage problems. The other is a single mother with several young children that just moved into the area. We had two visitors this past Sunday. Two young ladies that looked to be in their 20s. They were sisters. At the beginning of the year I challenged each person to try their best to get one person in church this year. They have all year to do this. Some have been working on it, and of course, some haven't been as any church would experience. One has already brought one family to church, and they have stuck with it and are continually attending church. Another man was coming, but his job now has him working on Sundays, and he has quit attending church. I know of several others that are doing all they can. Next month, we are having a big push to energize this program and our folks to work harder. Please pray for this event.

Next month, I am having surgery for a skin cancer on my temple and an MRI due to an increase in my PSA level. The doctor wasn't too concerned about it as it was within the normal range, but it had increased more than it should have since last year. He just wants to make sure.

I had promised some that we would make sure to come by their church when we came South again. Unfortunately, we haven't been able to get down there. It seems that there has been so much work to do that time hasn't allowed us to leave. It doesn't look like we will make it this year either. But as soon as we get to a place to where we can be gone for a few weeks, we will make the trip and make it a point to report back to those churches that we have promised to come by.

We thank each of you for your prayers and support.
